MARTIAL LAW DECREED IN HOLLAND

Three Flee Ross County Jail Cells

"TOUGHIES" USE SAWS TO MAKE THEIR GETAWAY

Two Fugitives Convicted For Armed Robbery; Third Held
As Marshal's Assailant

DESCRIPTIONS PROVIDED

Ernest Carr, Who Told Wierd
Story Of Local Bank Theft,
One Of Men Hunted

Three prisoners, one of whom had told authorities a false story that he participated in the Circleville Savings and Banking Co. robbery of December 5, escaped early Friday from the Ross County jail. Sheriff Joe Vincent said that the trio had sawed bars to make their getaway. At presstime Friday no clues had been found concerning their whereabouts.

They were:
Ernest Carr, 30, awaiting trial for shooting with intent to kill Marshal Earl Edgington of Bainbridge; described as five feet six inches tall, weighing 145 pounds, dark complexion, brown hair, blue eyes.

John W. Richards, 28, described as five feet eight inches tall, weighing 138 pounds, dark complexion, brown hair, blue eyes, wearing a blue serge suit.

Charles Richards, 22, his brother, five feet seven inches tall, weighing 130 pounds, dark complexion, black hair, blue eyes, wearing dark blue serge suit.

The Richards brothers, residents of Eagle Mills, Vinton County, were convicted this week of the armed robbery of Orville Cooper, a Chillicothe taxi driver.

All three are reported by Ross
County authorities to be "tough".
Circleville and Pickaway authorities learned of the break at 11
a. m. Friday over the State Highway Patrol radio. They have not been asked by Ross County authorities to participate in the search for the trio.

More details of the break were not obtained by the authorities.

Carr told a Ross County deputy several weeks ago that he had been one of the gang that robbed the Circleville Savings Bank of $11,500 and that he knew where the money was hidden. Sheriff
Charles Radcliff, Police Chief
W. F. McCrady, Deputy Don Low-ery of Ross County, and a federal agent questioned Carr about the holdup and even searched for a place in which Carr said the money had been secreted in an abandoned shanty along the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad tracks.
Their search failed to unearth the money. Carr's story was branded by the officials as false.

Italy Denies Imminent Entry On German Side

ROME, April 19—Rumors of Italy's imminent entry into the war on the side of Germany are false, diplomatic circles in Rome contended today.

These quarters said they were convinced that the rumors were spread by the British government to force a new definition of the Italian position prior to commencement of more aggressive Anglo-French moves in the Balkans.

G. O. P. STUDIES STONE, McNARY AS CANDIDATES

WASHINGTON, April 19 — A new compromise Republican presidential ticket is being discussed today in inner G. O. P. circles, to be proposed to the party's June convention in event of a deadlock.

The new "dark horse team" is:
For president: Harlan Fiske Stone, of New York.

For vice president: Charles L.
McNary, of Oregon.

The fate of this, the first "dark horse team" to be suggested in the current G. O. P. race, depends entirely on whether followers of Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, and Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, deadlock the convention. If neither Taft nor Dewey can win the nomination, then a group of G. O. P. leaders will propose the Stone-McNary ticket as a compromise.

Stone is now an associate justice of the Supreme Court, Mc-Nary is Republican leader of the senate.

Some Republican leaders now believe their convention is heading toward a deadlock, due to the fierce struggle being waged between Taft and Dewey for delegates. Their contest has developed personalities and some bitterness on both sides.

If Taft and Dewey defeat each other, there will be numerous
"dark horses" in the background.
The list would include Sen. Arthur
H. Vandenberg, Mich., Rep. Joseph
W. Martin, Jr., Mass., Sen.
H. Styles Bridges, N. H., Gov. John
W. Bricker, of Ohio, and Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts of Pennsylvania.

ALLIED, NAZI FORCES IN BITTER CONTEST

STOCKHOLM, April 19—Bitter fighting between British and German troops in Norway in which the Nazis were driven back was reported by the newspaper Dagens Nyheter today.

Dispatches from the war zone, citing reports from the German-occupied Trondheim region, said the engagement occurred near Namsos, north of Trondheim.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Stockholm stated that the Germans suffered heavy casualties in the fighting, and also were driven back in an attempt to reach Tromsø from Narvik.)
The Germans were forced to retreating under the blows of the British assault, the reports stated.

It was understood, the Dagens Nyheter added, that the German troops had been transported to the Namsos area by airplane from the Vaernes airport near Trondheim, strategic Norwegian port where the Germans are said to be preparing for a British attack.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A British radio broadcast this morning picked up by the Columbia Broadcasting System said the Germans were preparing for an allied attack on Trondheim.

Bridges Mined ("Bridges around the town have been mined, the civilian population has been evacuated and houses have been transformed into machine gun nests," the broadcaster said.

(NBC picked up a Berlin broadcast stating the German high command admitted stiff resistance by Norwegian troops defending the area around Oslofjord.

(Advices from London said there was no official confirmation of reports that British troops had landed in the Bodo area of the Norwegian Coast and captured the village of Lodding, the islands of Landegode and the port of Valvic. These reports also claimed the British had launched an attack on Bodo itself.)

Other reports to Stockholm indicated that a major battle is expected in the Elverum-Hamar area northeast of Oslo, the German-held Norwegian capital.

The Germans already are advancing steadily northward and skirmishes have occurred within 20 miles of Elverum, where Norwegian forces are expected to make a stand, according to these advices.

This battle may prove to be the first major engagement of the war between German and Norwegian forces.

Norwegian outpost forces were reported fighting bravely against the Germans, but could do little against the automatic weapons and low-flying machine-gunning warplanes that the Nazis sent against them.

Parachutes Used

German parachute troops were reported making a desperate effort to blow up the railway leading from the town of Alesund to prevent British troops from reaching the Elverum front to reinforce the Norwegians.

Major Hvoslef, who previously turned down an offer of the post of defense minister from the Nazi-sponsored puppet regime in Oslo, and now is in charge of operations on the Elverum front, declared in an interview:

"We can hold the Germans for some time on the Elverum-Hamar front, despite the fact that they have penetrated nearly to Moesa, about 12 miles south of Hamar.

"German parachute troops are of no value in our fields.

"Now we are waiting for the British."

An authentic summary of the military situation in Norway given to International News Service by Norwegian military officials, showed that German troops are still holding the northern port of Narvik but facing stiffened Norwegian resistance.

GREATER RANGE FOR NAVY GUNS GAINING FAVOR

WASHINGTON, April 19—
Congressional moves to increase the gun range of three big battleships today topped the most sweeping navy speedup program in peacetime history of the country.

Bills were prepared to modernize the dreadnaughts New York, Texas and Arkansas so their big turret rifles can toss TNT-loaded shells 12 miles. Eighteen years old, the ships now have a range of only eight miles.

Behind this new move, congress pushed through final stages a $963,797,478 navy supply bill for 1941, passed by the senate with only four dissenting votes, and approved President Roosevelt's order merging all navy construction and repair units for increased efficiency.

At the same time, navy admirals notified President Roosevelt they have found a way to speed up navy building so as to cut four months off the normal time for constructing a battleship.

Seemingly, economy warnings had little effect on the legislators as they okayed move after move providing funds for what Admiral Harold R. Stark, navy chief of operations, calls "the greatest peace society in the world."

PREMIER ASKS DUTCH PEOPLE TO STAY CALM

Contesting Countries
Urged To Respect
Neutrality

SITUATION GRAVE

Geer Says Nation
Not Favoring
Either Side

AMSTERDAM, April 19
—"In order to fortify the Dutch position," Premier
Dr. Dirk Jan De Geer today ordered the existing state of siege extended to the whole of Holland.

(Extension of the state of siege is tantamount to promulgation of martial law, according to a Reuter dispatch to London.)

"Holland does not talk to both sides of belligerents for protection, let alone either belligerent," he declared.

"Holland is depending solely on itself."

"Both sides promised to respect neutrality if Holland maintained it and no doubt she will.

"But any agreement with either belligerent would weaken the Dutch position. Therefore Holland would refuse all help, and also any form of preventive protection which also applies regarding her colonies.

"While Holland always is prepared to help bring about peace, anybody invading Holland in trying to attack an opponent will meet the utmost of our national defensive forces strengthened by our national resources."

Calmness Urged

The premier pleaded with the Dutch to remain calm and to do nothing which might be considered a breach of Netherlands' neutrality. He declared:

"I exhort you to remain calm and confident. An unbalanced people would not know how to show its full strength in an hour of danger . . .

"We have already seen how an exaggerated anxiety lest our neutrality be violated inspired a tendency to abandon it by understandings with the belligerents.

"Every people, like every individual, has a mission in this world.
The mission of our people at this time is to observe neutrality."

The premier's declaration concluded with a plea to the Dutch people "not to believe foreign rumors that Holland is unable or willing to defend herself."

"Neither is the government's policy crossed by political considerations," he added.

"Neither temptations nor threats will alter this viewpoint.
With God's help, Holland will come through."

BASSLERS ARRIVE SAFELY AFTER FLIGHT OVER SEA

Mrs. F. E. Barnhill, North
Court Street, was informed Friday that her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Bassler of Stockholm, Sweden, had arrived safely in New York on the Swedish ship, Bergensfjord. The Basslers left Bergen Norway, the day before Germany attacked the Scandinavian country.

Mrs. Barnhill's word that the Basslers were safe came from another sister who wrote that had the Bergensfjord remained in the Bergen harbor three hours longer they would have been under bombardment.

The Basslers are returning to Ohio to make their home.

F. D. R. TRAVELS SOUTH, BUT MAY BE CALLED SOON

Aboard Presidential Special En Route to WARM SPRINGS, Ga.,
April 19—President Roosevelt headed South today for a Warm Springs, Ga., vacation apparently fearful that one of Europe's belligerents is on the verge of invading another neutral country.

"If another country is invaded, I'll be right back," he said to a small group around the rear platform of his private car last night just before the presidential special pulled out of Washington.

Within the last week President
Roosevelt and Secretary of State
Hull have joined in denouncing German invasion of Norway and Denmark, and warned Japan that the Dutch East Indies must be left alone.

Statements from the White House and the State Department indicated fear of a possible move into the Netherlands by the Nazis as Chancellor Hitler's next step in his drive against the Allies.
Furthermore, it was no secret that Mr. Roosevelt is keeping as informed as possible about Italian Premier Mussolini's intentions.

State Department reports from the war zone were relayed to the President by wire and over telephone lines especially installed at succeeding stops along the train's route.

Mr. Roosevelt hopes to spend at least ten days at his "other home"
in Georgia—the famed Warm Springs infantile paralysis foundation.

RAILROADS TO BOOST RIVER

The Scioto River continued its steady rise Friday afternoon, nearing the 14-foot mark, as rain that has swept through Central Ohio for the last week continued to fall in torrents. The river was at the 13.24-foot stage at 8 a. m. Friday when a measurement was taken, but observers said that the rise since that hour has been sufficient to bring the 14-foot reading.

The river is out in the lowlands and at noon was almost ready to start pouring through the spillways of the new highway west of Circleville.

The total rainfall so far this month has surpassed the entire amount that fell in April last year. At 8 a. m. Friday, the weather gauge at the home of Miss Abbe Mills Clarke registered eight-tenths of an inch, and since that

BOND ISSUE FOR RELIEF PLANNED

Gordon Informed That Cash Can Be Raised Inside 10-Mill Limitation

Circleville's "crisis" in regard to financing its relief problem was eased considerably Friday when Ben H. Gordon, chairman of council's finance committee, said that he had been informed that council can issue sufficient bonds without a vote to assure payment of its share of the relief costs.

The bonds would be issued within the 10-mill limitation, Gordon said, thus making a vote unnecessary. He was informed by Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, that the city's bonded debt is low enough that the issue can be made without any difficulty. The city owes $4,000 at present to the county commissioners as its share of the relief burden. Bills will be presented each month at least until August for the city's share. Miss Young told Mr. Gordon that the amount that can be issued is approximately $14,000 at the present time.

Other bonds totalling $11,000 will be paid off in the next three months, the councilman said.

Gordon said that since the bonds can be issued inside the 10-mill limit that there will be no need to issue bonds against anticipated payment of delinquent taxes.

A special meeting of council will be called probably next Wednesday evening at which time the bonds will be voted. The county commissioners will be informed Monday that the city is ready to resume payment of its share of the relief cost.

NAZI SOLDIERS IN NORTH LAND FIXED AT 60,000

LONDON, April 19—German reinforcements are arriving at Trondheim and Oslo by air to the number of 2,000 daily and Nazi forces in Norway now approximate 60,000 men, a Norwegian government spokesman declared on his arrival in London today.

The spokesman urged that stories of Norwegian treachery in connection with the invasion be treated with utmost reserve. With but a few exceptions, he said, demoralization and treachery rather than treason made the quick German occupation possible.

The Nazis seized broadcasting stations and other channels of communication, he declared, and sent out instructions purporting to come from the Norwegian government.

So far as the future is concerned, the spokesman stressed that the backbone of Norway is rural and not urban. German seizure of towns and cities, he said, is therefore a "bad but not decisive blow."

At the same time, navy admirals notified President Roosevelt they have found a way to speed up navy building so as to cut four months off the normal time for constructing a battleship.

Seemingly, economy warnings had little effect on the legislators as they okayed move after move providing funds for what Admiral Harold R. Stark, navy chief of operations, calls "the greatest peace society in the world."

Geer Says Nation Not Favoring Either Side

AMSTERDAM, April 19—"In order to fortify the Dutch position," Premier Dr. Dirk Jan De Geer today ordered the existing state of siege extended to the whole of Holland.

(Extension of the state of siege is tantamount to promulgation of martial law, according to a Reuter dispatch to London.)

"Holland does not talk to both sides of belligerents for protection, let alone either belligerent," he declared.

"Holland is depending solely on itself.

"Both sides promised to respect neutrality if Holland maintained it and no doubt she will.

"But any agreement with either belligerent would weaken the Dutch position. Therefore Holland would refuse all help, and also any form of preventive protection which also applies regarding her colonies.

"While Holland always is prepared to help bring about peace, anybody invading Holland in trying to attack an opponent will meet the utmost of our national defensive forces strengthened by our national resources."

Calmness Urged

The premier pleaded with the Dutch to remain calm and to do nothing which might be considered a breach of Netherlands' neutrality. He declared:

"I exhort you to remain calm and confident. An unbalanced people would not know how to show its full strength in an hour of danger . . .

"We have already seen how an exaggerated anxiety lest our neutrality be violated inspired a tendency to abandon it by understandings with the belligerents.

"Every people, like every individual, has a mission in this world. The mission of our people at this time is to observe neutrality."

The premier's declaration concluded with a plea to the Dutch people "not to believe foreign rumors that Holland is unable or willing to defend herself."

"Neither is the government's policy crossed by political considerations," he added.

"Neither temptations nor threats will alter this viewpoint. With God's help, Holland will come through."

BASSLERS ARRIVE SAFELY AFTER FLIGHT OVER SEA

Mrs. F. E. Barnhill, North Court Street, was informed Friday that her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Bassler of Stockholm, Sweden, had arrived safely in New York on the Swedish ship, Bergensfjord. The Basslers left Bergen Norway, the day before Germany attacked the Scandinavian country.

Mrs. Barnhill's word that the Basslers were safe came from another sister who wrote that had the Bergensfjord remained in the Bergen harbor three hours longer they would have been under bombardment.

The Basslers are returning to Ohio to make their home.

"If another country is invaded, I'll be right back," he said to a small group around the rear platform of his private car last night just before the presidential special pulled out of Washington.

Within the last week President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull have joined in denouncing German invasion of Norway and Denmark, and warned Japan that the Dutch East Indies must be left alone.

Statements from the White House and the State Department indicated fear of a possible move into the Netherlands by the Nazis as Chancellor Hitler's next step in his drive against the Allies. COURT'S RULING ON DELINQUENT TAX BOND VITAL

Programs Of Welfare And Other Departments Hinge On High Tribunal

POOR RELIEF IN DOUBT

20 Millions Being Issued Each Year Anticipating Debt Payments

COLUMBUS, April 19.—State officials today awaited apprehensively a pending supreme court suit contesting the legality of delinquent tax bonds.

While confident the high tribunal would uphold the legality of such issues, the welfare department and the tax department pointed out that an adverse decision might demolish their entire program.

Tax department spokesmen said the prospect of assessing Ohioans a possible $20,000,000 in additional taxes hinged on the outcome of the mandamus action, brought by the city of Cleveland to compel State Finance Director Herbert D. Defenbacher to approve a delinquent tax issue.

State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt declared that, should the bonds be declared illegal, the money for poor relief and other needs currently being met by such issues would have to be raised by other means.

"About the only other method possible would be an increase in taxes," he asserted.

$20,000,000 Being Raised
For the first quarter of 1940, the board of tax appeals authorized the issuance of $6,186,929 in delinquent tax bonds. This would indicate that more than $20,000,000 annually is being raised through such issues. Should this source of revenue be declared invalid, taxes of some sort would be required to provide such funds, Evatt said.

Much of the entire question of poor relief financing revolves around the tax bonds, a welfare department spokesman declared. At nearly every conference between welfare department officials and relief subdivision heads—and there have been dozens of such conferences—the issuance of tax bonds was suggested as a major means for the subdivision to raise its share of the relief costs.

Should the issue be declared illegal, many of the state's relief subdivisions would become insolvent, the spokesmen declared. The attack on the legality of the bonds was instituted by Morton Iovoe, Cleveland attorney, who asked for a writ in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court to halt an issue previously approved. He asserted that, if the delinquent taxes on which the bonds are based had been collected when due, a portion of the proceeds would have been set aside for debt service.

Therefore, he contended, a portion of the proceeds must still be used for that purpose. Hence the delinquent taxes cannot be pledged for any other end, such as poor relief.

The tax department contends that the portion to be set aside for debt service is appropriated from the amount of taxes actually collected, leaving the remainder free of obligation.

Cleveland in Center
The case reached the Supreme Court after the board of tax appeals approved another Cuyahoga County issue. Wishing to have the legal status of the matter settled, Defenbacher refused to approve the bonds. The city of

OTTO PREPARES FOR TRIP HOME; SCORES HITLER

NEW YORK, April 19.—Archduke Otto of Austria, claimant to the non-existent Austro-Hungarian throne, was to depart today for Europe convinced that Adolf Hitler will lose the war.

"If the unbelievable should happen and Hitler, at the end of the present struggle, should win the upper hand in Europe anarchy will follow," said the Archduke. "Such an anarchy would undoubtedly affect the political and economic stability of all nations, including the Western Hemisphere."

A professor in Munich invented a clock for invalids. When a button is pressed, a magnified shadow of the hands is thrown on the ceiling, so the sick person may see it without changing his position.

Cleveland then applied for a writ of mandamus, and the matter was expected to be settled by the court within a month.

These examinations are difficult, to say the least, and all are marked by warnings that extreme care must be taken in writing answers, preparing the test papers, etc.

Eighth graders of Pickaway County were taking examinations Friday in six testing centers, the tests beginning at 9 a. m., English, American History, science and mathematics being given. County awards will be presented to those who rank in the upper 25 percent and state awards will go to those who rank in the high one percent in Ohio.

And here are the instructions that went out to all school administrators concerning the eighth grade tests:

Be sure each student writes his name, address, school and county on his Answer Sheet. (County is to be written in the space below "school"). He is not to write in the test booklet.

It will be very important for you to see that each student taking this test for machine scoring uses a soft Number 2 pencil.

The mark made must be within the numbered space, and by all means must be heavy, black, and glossy. The machine will not record the answer unless this instruction is observed.

Instruct the students to make no other marks on the Answer Sheet. Stray pencil marks, such as pencil dots made by resting the pencil on the Answer Sheet, may be recorded in the machine

$32,436 MAILED TO COUNTY FROM AUTO TAG FUND

Circleville Check To Be $3,550; Other Towns Included

STREET WORK ASSURED

More Than $8,000,000 Sent Out By State Registrar Of Motor Vehicles

Circleville, Pickaway County and various other taxing districts Friday were receiving a total of $32,436 distributed by Cylon W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, as the first payment of shares from the 1940 license tag sales.

Wallace, who announced that more than $8,000,000 was being spread through the 88 counties during the day, said that the figure represents approximately 50 percent of the tag money that goes into the 47 percent fund for each county, and the 25 percent fund which goes to the taxing districts within the county. The exact sum distributed is $8,472,823, Wallace said.

The distribution comes one week earlier this year than in 1939. On April 26, 1939, Wallace distributed $8,449,095 to the counties of the state.

Circleville receives $3,550 as its share, while the county fund amounts to $6,300.

Other checks include: Ashville, $600; Commercial Point, $150; New Holland, $275; South Bloomfield, $37.50; Turlington, $100, and Williamsport, $250.

Auto tag money is earmarked for street repair and maintenance only.

STATE USES GAS TO END LIFE OF KILLER OF WIFE

RAWLINS, Wyo., April 19 — The lethal gas chamber at the Wyoming penitentiary claimed its second victim as Stanley S. Lantzer, 38-year-old wife slayer, walked calmly to his death early today.

The former Brush, Colo., hayfield worker had a wan smile on his lips as a guard blindfolded him. Muttering prayers, the condemned man then accompanied Warden Alonzo Roach down the 15-foot corridor to the steel death chamber, walking with firm stride.

Before the door of the death chamber swung shut, Lantzer called for the Rev. William Young of Brush, who had been at his side all afternoon and night.

"Kiss me brother," asked Lantzer. The minister kissed him and left the chamber.

One minute after he had been strapped in the seat in the lethal gas chamber, 32 pellets of sodium cyanide were dropped into a bucket of sulphuric acid below the metal chair. Two minutes and 10 seconds after the deadly gas began generating, Dr. C. W. Jeffrey, prison physician, formally pronounced him dead.

Lantzer was condemned for the slaying of his estranged wife, Cecil, 32, at a Cheyenne tourist camp, on August 29, 1938. The gas chamber replaced hanging as a method of execution here in 1935.

Of Motor Vehicles

Circleville, Pickaway County and various other taxing districts Friday were receiving a total of $32,436 distributed by Cylon W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, as the first payment of shares from the 1940 license tag sales.

Wallace, who announced that more than $8,000,000 was being spread through the 88 counties during the day, said that the figure represents approximately 50 percent of the tag money that goes into the 47 percent fund for each county, and the 25 percent fund which goes to the taxing districts within the county. The exact sum distributed is $8,472,823, Wallace said.

The distribution comes one week earlier this year than in 1939. On April 26, 1939, Wallace distributed $8,449,095 to the counties of the state.

Circleville receives $3,550 as its share, while the county fund amounts to $6,300.

Other checks include: Ashville, $600; Commercial Point, $150; New Holland, $275; South Bloomfield, $37.50; Tarlton, $100, and Williamsport, $250.

Auto tag money is earmarked for street repair and maintenance only.

Personal Notes of News From Ashville, Vicinity

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

Robert Knowlen, five month old, with his parents Samuel and Mrs. Cloud are here from New York City on a visit to Mr. Cloud's parents John and Mrs. Cloud and other relatives and friends. We can't tell here all we know about Sam, but when he was a youngster in high school, on several occasions we called by phone the superintendent to please send us one of the very best boys he had for an important trip out of town, and here would come Sam.

It will be news to some of you "older boys" who knew him, to learn that William A. Fridley, for a considerable time justice of the peace of Madison Township, is yet living, his home at Oakdale, California. He was 85 years of age last December 29. He is the last living member of the Isaac Fridley family.

Ed Ett is great-granddad again and he tells us for the fourth time. This last one, Jean Ann, the daughter of Rayman Chaffey and wife, was born on the 13th, inst., at Lancaster.

Mrs. Priscilla Stoltz, 93, widow of Lewis Stoltz, and a resident of Ashville for many years, is critically ill at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. John L. Spindler and wife, Long Street. Ira Scothorn and wife, Walnut Township, confined to his bed part time for the last couple of weeks.

Within the next few days, Sam Hummel, who has spent the last several months here from the home of his daughter at Montour Falls, New York, will return there. But

STATE USES GAS TO END LIFE OF KILLER OF WIFE

RAWLINS, Wyo., April 19 — The lethal gas chamber at the Wyoming penitentiary claimed its second victim as Stanley S. Lantzer, 38-year-old wife slayer, walked calmly to his death early today.

The former Brush, Colo., hayfield worker had a wan smile on his lips as a guard blindfolded him. Muttering prayers, the condemned man then accompanied Warden Alonzo Roach down the 15-foot corridor to the steel death chamber, walking with firm stride.

Before the door of the death chamber swung shut, Lantzer called for the Rev. William Young of Brush, who had been at his side all afternoon and night.

"Kiss me brother," asked Lantzer. The minister kissed him and left the chamber.

One minute after he had been strapped in the seat in the lethal gas chamber, 32 pellets of sodium cyanide were dropped into a bucket of sulphuric acid below the metal chair. Two minutes and 10 seconds after the deadly gas be-

Lantzer was condemned for the slaying of his estranged wife, Cecil, 32, at a Cheyenne tourist camp, on August 29, 1933. The gas chamber replaced hanging as a method of execution here in 1935.

ALLIED, GERMAN ARMIES VIE IN BITTER BATTLE

Situation Unchanged According to Narvik officers fighting is progressing all over Norway but so far there have been few major changes in the situation. The biggest and most decisive battles are yet to be fought.

In addition to Narvik, the Germans control the iron ore railway running eastward to the Swedish border. But retreating Norwegians wrecked the railway before abandoning it, the Norwegians claimed.

These sources also reported there are no German warships in Narvik Harbor or the inner or outer fjords. British cruisers have blocked the fjord and control the entrance. But the Germans apparently are holding the British ships at bay with their own artillery and with captured Norwegian coastal batteries.

It also was revealed that the Germans attempted to send an expedition north to Tromsø but were driven back to Narvik by a Norwegian brigade.

In southern Norway the entire Oestfold region from Oslo east and south to the Swedish frontier is controlled by the Germans. But Norwegian troops, isolated in the Fossum Region, are holding out in a stubborn and brave defense and their forts are now known as Norway's "Alcazar."

The Germans control the roads and railways in this area, but still have not cleared the Norwegians from the snow-blocked forests and countryside.

North of Oslo the Germans are pushing north in the Kongsvinger area but the Norwegians still hold a strong defense line from Lake Mjøsa to Randsfjord. In addition the Norwegians have established contact with the Allied forces by sea and land and British liaison officers are now working with the Norwegian military headquarters.

PAUL REVERE'S FAMOUS RIDE 165 YEARS AGO

BOSTON, April 19—A lantern appeared in the belfry of Old North Church today, then a second lantern. The waiting man mounted his horse and clattered over the streets of the city—Paul Revere rode again.

The modern Paul Revere—a national guardsman—rode not to warn that the British were coming but in commemoration of that ride of 165 years ago today when Paul Revere and William Dawes, Jr., galloped to Concord and Lexington where "the shot heard 'round the world" was fired in 1775 and the colonies began their long struggle for independence.

"BEEN YEARS SINCE I FELT SO GOOD," SAYS THIS OHIO MAN

"Everyone who suffers as I used to will find it worth their time to read all about this great medicine Vendol," says Mr. William Johnson, who lives at 236 Oak St., Columbus, Ohio.

"For some time I had not been feeling like myself but was conatipated and all out of sorts with everything. This constipated condition made me nervous and jumpy and kept me from getting a full night's sleep; then next morning I'd awaken feeling tired, muscles felt sore and stiff which took an hour or two to feel limbered up and ready to start the day's work. Also, it kept my stomach upset so that what I ate turned sour, bloated me with gas, and felt as though I had a lump in my throat.

"I heard a lot about Vendol and how it helped so many people living all around here with the same troubles as mine, so decided that I would give Vendol a trial. It wasn't long in proving to me that here was exactly the medicine I needed, because it promoted the most thorough, easiest bowel action I'd had in years, so now I

NAZI SWASTIKA FLYING ON MICHIGAN'S CAMPUS

ANN ARBOR, Mich., April 19—A six-foot Nazi swastika flew from the flag pole on the University of Michigan campus today as students prepared to hold a huge "peace demonstration" with U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota as the principal speaker.

The flag, which was raised sometime during the night, could not be lowered since the ropes had been cut. Several students tried to climb the 150-foot pole to drop the German flag but their efforts proved futile and university employees were to attempt the task.

REFUGEES SAY NAZIS CUT OFF

"We were guarding the tourist club cabin in Bearfjeld when a German patrol arrived. We met it with machine-gun fire but they replied with rifle and automatic fire. Their bullets pierced the walls of the hut, killing and wounding many."

"The German patrol, was mowed down but they had time to send up rockets for reinforcements. When the reinforcements used hand grenades we had to abandon the hut."

Brave Women Lauded "All the time we were in the cabin a Norwegian woman nurse tended our wounded. She was the bravest woman I have ever met."

Many unverified rumors flooded the border region, one stating that Major Vikdun Quisling, who for a brief period headed the puppet regime established by the Germans at Oslo, has been assassinated.

According to this rumor Quisling was killed by four Norwegian students. There was no confirmation of this.

An eye-witness who reached the border from Trondheim said British planes on Tuesday bombed and sank three German boats in Trondheim Harbor and that other British planes bombed the nearby vaernes airdrome, destroying five German planes.

For the benefit of collectors desiring stamps of selected quality for philatelic use, the new stamp was placed on sale at the Philatelic Agency on April 14.

The other stamp is a Pony Express stamp commemorating the 18th anniversary of the Pony Express. In each upper corner is a vertical panel with dark ground containing at the left a reproduction of a buffalo skull, and a sheaf of wheat at the right in white.

The stamp was first placed on sale at St. Joseph, Missouri, and Sacramento, California, on April 3.

Wegian resistance in the Trondheim and Bergen sectors.

British troops hold Namsos, near the scene of today's fighting between the British and Germans, while the Norwegians control the area still further North.

Situation Unchanged

According to Norwegian officers fighting is progressing all over Norway but so far there have been few major changes in the situation. The biggest and most decisive battles are yet to be fought.

In addition to Narvik, the Germans control the iron ore railway running eastward to the Swedish border. But retreating Norwegians wrecked the railway before abandoning it, the Norwegians claimed.

These sources also reported there are no German warships in Narvik Harbor or the inner or outer fjords. British cruisers have blocked the fjord and control the entrance. But the Germans apparently are holding the British ships at bay with their own artillery and with captured Norwegian coastal batteries.

It also was revealed that the Germans attempted to send an expedition north to Tromsø but were driven back to Narvik by a Norwegian brigade.

In southern Norway the entire Oestfold region from Oslo east and south to the Swedish frontier is controlled by the Germans. But Norwegian troops, isolated in the Fossum Region, are holding out in a stubborn and brave defense and their forts are now known as Norway's "Alcazar."

The Germans control the roads and railways in this area, but still have not cleared the Norwegians from the snow-blocked forests and countryside.

North of Oslo the Germans are pushing north in the Kongsvinger area but the Norwegians still hold a strong defense line from Lake Mjøsa to Randsfjord. In addition the Norwegians have established contact with the Allied forces by sea and land and British liaison officers are now working with the Norwegian military headquarters.

PAUL REVERE'S FAMOUS RIDE 165 YEARS AGO

BOSTON, April 19—A lantern appeared in the belfry of Old North Church today, then a second lantern. The waiting man mounted his horse and clattered over the streets of the city—Paul Revere rode again.

The modern Paul Revere—a national guardsman—rode not to warn that the British were coming but in commemoration of that ride of 165 years ago today when Paul Revere and William Dawes, Jr., galloped to Concord and Lexington where the shot heard 'round the world' was fired in 1775 and the colonies began their long struggle for independence.

"BEEN YEARS SINCE I FELT SO GOOD," SAYS THIS OHIO MAN

Was miserable every day until he took Vendol and got amazing relief. Advises everyone to try famous medicine.

"Everyone who suffers as I used to find it worth their time to read all about this grand medicine, Vendol," says Mr. William Johnson, who lives at 236 Oak St., Columbus, Ohio.

"For some time I had not been feeling like myself but was constipated and all out of sorts with everything. This constipated condition made me nervous and jumpy and kept me from getting a full night's sleep; then next morning I'd awaken feeling tired, muscles felt sore and stiff which took an hour or two to feel limbered up and ready to start the day's work. Also, it kept my stomach upset so that what I ate turned sour, bloated me with gas, and felt as though I had a lump in my throat.

"I heard a lot about Vendol and how it helped so many people living all around here with the same troubles as mine, so decided that I would give Vendol a trial. It wasn't long in proving to me that here was exactly the medicine I needed, because it promoted the most thorough, easiest bowel action I'd had in years, so now I

ANN ARBOR, Mich., April 19—A six-foot Nazi swastika flew from the flag pole on the University of Michigan campus today as students prepared to hold a huge "peace demonstration" with U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota as the principal speaker.

The flag, which was raised sometime during the night, could not be lowered since the ropes had been cut. Several students tried to climb the 150-foot pole to drop the German flag but their efforts proved futile and university employees were to attempt the task.

The Germans on the Narvik railroad, one soldier said:

"We were guarding the tourist club cabin in Bearfield when a German patrol arrived. We met it with machine-gun fire but they replied with rifle and automatic fire. Their bullets pierced the walls of the hut, killing and wounding many.

"The German patrol, was moved down but they had time to send up rockets for reinforcements. When the reinforcements used hand grenades we had to abandon the hut.

Brave Women Lauded

"All the time we were in the cabin a Norwegian woman nurse tended our wounded. She was the bravest woman I have ever met."

Many unverified rumors flooded the border region, one stating that Major Vikdun Quisling, who for a brief period headed the puppet regime established by the Germans at Oslo, has been assassinated.

According to this rumor Quisling was killed by four Norwegian students. There was no confirmation of this.

An eye-witness who reached the border from Trondheim said British planes on Tuesday bombed and sank three German boats in Trondheim Harbor and that other British planes bombed the nearby vaernes airdrome, destroying five German planes.

TWO NEW 3-CENT STAMPS ON SALE AT POSTOFFICE

Two new 3-cent stamps are now on sale at the postoffice. Postmaster A. Hulse Hays announced Friday.

One is the new Pan American stamp, commemorating the 15th anniversary of the Pan-American Union. It is a purple stamp whose central design portrays three female figures with clasped hands, from the allegorical painting of "Spring," by Botticelli, typifying the bonds of friendship and good will that exist between the countries of the Pan-American Union.

For the benefit of collectors desiring stamps of selected quality for philatelic use, the new stamp was placed on sale at the Philatelic Agency on April 14.

The other stamp is a Pony Express stamp commemorating the 18th anniversary of the Pony Express. Its central design depicts a mounted Pony Express rider leaving a relay station with a consignment of mail. In each upper corner is a vertical panel with dark ground containing at the left a reproduction of a buffalo skull, and a sheaf of wheat at the right in white.

The stamp was first placed on sale at St. Joseph, Missouri, and Sacramento, California, on April 3.

BIG GENE KURLS REDS TO SECOND MARGIN IN ROW

Thompson On Firing Line As Cincinnati Defeats Cubs By 2-1 Count

PITTSBURGH, April 19—The first two games were any indication, the spark that drives the Cincinnati Reds through the 1940 campaign will be the pitching.

In two victories over the Chicago Cubs, Red hurlers allowed only 11 hits. Paul Derringer twirled six hit ball in the opening encounter while young Gene Thompson hung up a five hit gem in yesterday's 2-to-1 victory over the Windy City lads which sent the Reds into first place.

Slated to take the mound for the Reds today as they opened against Pittsburgh in the first of a three games series was Bucky Walters, who recorded 27 wins in the 1939 drive to the national league pennant.

Striking out seven batters, Thompson blanked the Cubs until the ninth inning in Thursday's fray. Second baseman Herman scored the sole Chicago tally.

The Reds put across two markers in the eighth frame when Left Fielder Mike McCormick and Shortstop Billy Myers nicked Claude Passeau, Cub moundsman, for successive doubles. McCormick's single scored Gamble, running for Lombardi, Myers' clout sent McCormick scurrying across the plate for the first run he has scored in league competition for the Reds.

Thompson walked two batters. Passeau fanned five and walked four. The Reds had 11 men left on bases to six for Chicago.

Transfer To Outfield Doesn't Hurt Big Hank

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, April 19—Hank Greenberg never will steal any fielding laurels from Joe DiMaggio but it is evident today that the big Tiger lost none of his power at the plate by his transition from a fine first baseman to any ordinary outfielder.

Two years ago big Hank seriously challenged Babe Ruth's home run record by hitting for the circuit 58 times. This year he is off to a flying start in the home run derby and seems ready to dispute any and all batting honors with Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams, Charley Keller and DiMaggio.

If you want to find the next American League batting champion, the leader in runs batted in and the home run king you probably won't have to look beyond the aforementioned quintet of power hitters.

Hank got off to a flying start in all departments yesterday when his homer and triple drove in three runs and helped Tommy Bridges get a 4-2 decision over the Browns.

Foxx went right along with Hank by belting a three-run homer which helped give young Jim Bagby a 7-0 verdict over the Senators. Bagby's five-hit pitching was of more moment to the Red Sox than Foxx's hitting for if the Red Sox are to menace the Yankees Bagby must win a lot of games. So, too, must Grove, Rich and Wilson.

Two successive shutouts over the weak-hitting Senators probably won't arouse undue enthusiasm in Boston but at least they serve to show the Red Sox pitching may not be as futile as many believe.

These were the only games played in the American League and inclement weather permitted only one battle in the National and that resulted in another 2-1 verdict for the Reds over the Cubs. The chief interest here was the pitching of young Gene Thompson of the Reds. It has been said that Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer could not be expected to win 52 games between them for the Reds as they did last year, and many wondered who would take up the slack in their pitching.

Bill McKechnie has the answer in Thompson. This youngster was only beginning to find himself toward the close of last season and he now seems ready to hold his own with Walters and Derringer. If he does, the Reds are going to be mighty tough to handle.

BIG NAME BOWLERS ON SCHEDULE FOR A. B. C.

DETROIT, April 19—The greatest single array of "name" teams for the current American Bowling Congress championships dominates the week end play which begins today and penetration of the "high ten" leader list was expected.

Among the favored delegations were Chicago's Babst Blue Ribbons, sixth place title holders in the 1939 championships at Cleveland and possessors of Ned Day, national match game champion, at anchor; Dean Rubber of Kansas City, eighth place owner last year; and Linsz All-Stars of Cleveland, recent winners of the right to meet Hermann Undertakers of St. Louis for the five-man match game title.

der, 2. Hits—Off Hader, 8 in 8-1/3 innings; off Sunkel, 2 in 1-2/3; off Melton, 0 in 1-3/4. Losing pitcher—Hader. Umpires—Genshien and Weaver. Time—2:00. Attendance—2464.

Big Ten Moguls Study Fate Of Chicago Sport

CHICAGO, April 19—With Big Ten directors of athletics scheduled to make the decision in a meeting at Chicago Sunday, the chances today appeared to be about 50-50 that the University of Chicago would be included on the 1941 Western Conference basketball schedules.

If the directors exclude Chicago, which has dropped football but expressed a desire to continue in other conference sports, it will be considered tantamount to suspending the Maroons from the Big Ten. Actual power to suspend or expell, however, rests with the faculty committee.

Remarks made by Dr. Robert Maynard Hitchins, president, and other spokesmen for Chicago at the time football was dropped are the chief issue in determining the school's status.

The statements were to the effect that one reason for dropping football was that Chicago could not win without recruiting and subsidizing athletes. This was taken as an implication that subsidizing and recruiting, and other "dishonest" practices, were in progress at other Big Ten schools.

The directors of athletics, at their meeting in March, called on Chicago either to prove or retract such statements, attributed to an "unidentified spokesman," and held up the basketball schedules pending a reply.

It was understood today that a private reply has been circulated among the directors.

Four athletic directors were reported to favor dropping Chicago from the basketball schedules, while three others were said to favor retaining and "forgiving" the Maroons.

BEULAH PARK'S INITIAL EVENTS TO BE MUDDERS

COLUMBUS, April 19—Mudders should have a field day at Beulah Park tomorrow when the 25-day spring horse racing season gets underway, it appeared today.

Continued rainfall during the week has rendered the Beulah oval soggy, making an ideal situation for those horses who revel in the rough going.

Toppling the initial day's program is the mile Inaugural Handicap bearing a $700 purse. Nominations for the Inaugural include Blue Play, Queen Clarice and Jay D. Seen.

Feature race of the entire meeting is the $2,500 Governor's Handicap, carded for the last day, May 18. Early nominations for the Governor's affair include Cal-exico, Show Up, Winning Chance, Sobriety and Blue Play.

FIGHT BETWEEN LOUIS AND BUD BAER IS TALKED

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, April 19—A world heavyweight title fight between Champion Joe Louis and Buddy Baer was being talked about in all seriousness today, and we want to be the first to suggest that if boxing wishes to avoid the long threatened investigation by the national government its guiding en-luses had better not hold this one.

Everybody remembers too clearly what happened a few weeks ago when Johnny Paycheck met Louis and quit cold before he even lifted his hand. Buddy Baer against Louis must be only a repetition of that fiasco.

Louis' handlers are eager for the champion to meet the younger Baer at the University of Michigan stadium, at Ann Arbor, in the event he decisively beats Nathan Mann on May 3. They had better think twice before stating any such match.

It so happens that Louis knocked Mann out in a couple of punches, a couple of years ago, and, therefore, Buddy Baer can gain little prestige by duplicating the feat.

'ERSATZ' BREAD

LONDON—"Ersatz" bread has arrived in Britain. Samples were sent to the London Zoological Gardens where it is stated the animals are "doing well" on it. The ingredients are wholemeal, stone ground flour, natural salts of calcium and phosphorus, and the proteins of the soy bean. Experts state that it should be made available to the public.

THREE VIOLENT DEATHS LISTED IN CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, April 19—Three violent deaths, two suicides and an automobile casualty, were recorded in the Cincinnati area today.

Henry Brankamp, 83-year-old retired merchant tailor, died from injuries suffered when struck by an automobile. William T. Hensley, 62, died three hours after firing a revolver bullet into his left temple. Albert Williams, 53-year-old efficiency manager, succumbed to injuries suffered when he leaped from a fourth floor window.

THE HEROES AND THE GOATS

HEROES — Hank Greenberg, Detroit outfielder, whose homer and triple yesterday helped the Tigers beat the Browns, 4-2.

JIMMY FOXX and Jim Bagby of the Red Sox. Foxx's three-run homer and Bagby's 5-hit pitching beat the Senators, 7-0.

Gene Thompson who gave only five hits as the Reds again beat the Cubs, 2-1.

GOATS—Sid Hudson who blew higher than a kite as the Red Sox spoiled his major league debut, and Claude Passeau who weakened in the eighth against the Reds.

Parisians are to be permitted use of hot water only three days a week, as a war rationing measure. And every little French boy hopes that when Mama gets to worrying about his ears she'll stop and be patriotic.

OPEN LETTERS

TO HIGH SCHOOL BAND

YOUNGSTERS: Congratulations this week go to the Circleville High School band, to its director, Professor Charles Zaenglein, and to all who participated in the campaign that brought in plenty of money with which to equip the organization. The band won the hearts of all who saw the parade and heard the brief concert this week in the business district. The organization, dressed up as a Circleville band has never before been bedecked, played excellent music, and looked like the proverbial "million dollars." Although this has been written before, credit for the start of the campaign for funds with which to buy uniforms must go to the auxiliary of the American Legion post. This organization started a drive in its own organization and raised $100 with which to get the campaign under way. The task of this organization was not an easy one, because it received little support at first. But backing by the Chamber of Commerce and organization of a committee headed by Ray E. Rowland brought the long hoped-for results. Circleville can now be proud of its band, one that doesn't need to back down to any other similar organization in Ohio. I was surprised by the number of persons on hand to see the exhibition. Several hundred individuals were present to get their first view of the band in its new uniforms. I know that many persons will be on hand when the band appears at Lancaster in the second of the spring festivals next Friday.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MOTORISTS

DRIVERS: This is merely a warning all of you should heed: obey Circleville's traffic regulations. If you try to beat red traffic lights, and fail; if you try to slip through a stop sign, and are observed; if you travel too fast; if you park too long, and on the wrong side of the street, you are likely to take a little jaunt into Mayor W. B. Cady's court for reprimanding and fines, because city police have been told to clamp down. Why have laws if you don't enforce them? is the theme being carried out in the city's safety department. With much stress being placed on the uptown situation, including the parallel parking innovation, traffic officers of the city force have not been spending much of their time in the business district and have not been paying much attention to the outer regions. However, all stop signs have been erected at the proper corners and motorists are expected to observe them. One of these days you'll pop around a corner ignoring a stop sign and find a nice policeman waiting for you. These laws are passed only for your protection and for the protection of your neighbors. You should cooperate in their enforcement. Chief McCrady came through with an announcement the other day that carries much importance. He said that persons who ignore traffic violation citations can expect to be hauled into the mayor's court by policemen who will be using warrants. It isn't nice to have a warrant served on you, so my suggestion would be to obey any summons issued by a policeman.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BUSINESSMEN

FRIENDS: Those of you who were not privileged last Monday evening to hear an address by Dr. H. H. Maynard of Ohio State University at the Kiwanis Club meeting missed a message that would have benefitted all of you. Dr. Maynard discussed numerous possibilities that face a city the size of Circleville in a business way. He told how a center located as ours could improve its business with a few simple efforts. He discussed the need for improved lighting inside and outside of the various stores as "the best salesman a store can employ." He urged store operators to develop their customers by becoming friendly with them, learning their names, the names of their children, because patrons like to be treated as friends and not as strangers. He urged, too, that a suitable parking location be provided so that buyers moving into the cities from rural areas need not hunt places in which to leave their cars. This statement came close to home because Circleville is still experimenting, trying to find a suitable solution for a parking situation that has become important. There are many who favor a continuation of the parallel system; others are opposed to it. The address proved to be one of the most outstanding offered at a Kiwanis Club meeting in recent months. Need for better light in the stores of the business district has been stressed time after time, and the need for boulevard lighting, too, has been cited, but very few definite steps have been taken. True, many stores have remodeled in recent years and others are expecting to do so. Aggressiveness, the kind that goes after business, is one of the vital factors on which business depends.

CIRCUITEER.

TO YOUTH HOSTEL GROUP

BACKERS: Circleville should have a unit in the National Youth Hostel program, one that will compare favorably with those in other cities. The Youth Hostel program has been developing steadily throughout the nation, and this city should be included in its growth. The idea is this: there are many youthful hiking and cycling clubs that travel to various parts of the state during week end and holiday periods. The Youth Hostel plan is to have a center in each key city where these youthful organizations may stay overnight, or rest during the day when on their trips. The Circleville committee which is headed by Turney Weldon has several locations in mind and is expected to complete arrangements for a Hostel within the next few days.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

AN ANTI-DEWEY newspaper specialist on New York politics drifted into Washington the other day and I met him at the National Press club. Naturally we discussed presidential possibilities. The things he had to say to Tom Dewey's disadvantage were aplenty.

"Well, anyway," I remarked, "he makes pretty lively speeches." "He ought to," rejoined my vis-a-vis. "He has an extremely able staff writing them for him." Not being a New Yorker myself, I don't know whether or not the Republican aspirant's talks are ghost-written. It's a fact, however, that they're making the administration's supporters tremulously sore.

Other G. O. P. spokesmen have charged that New Deal policies have been "mistaken" and "extraneous." But in general they've agreed that they've been well meant—that many of them have been adopted in desirable directions—if only (the critics assert) they hadn't been bungled in execution.

Dewey's account, however, is that the record has been one of "unpunished crime—broken covenants, disloyalty to the constitution, abuse of power, intimidation, coercion, extortion and larceny." It's been premeditated, too, according to Dewey.

He also has mentioned individuals—such as Harry Hopkins and Senator Alben Barkley.

IT'S "PEPPY" READING

This sort of stuff makes gingery reading in the newspapers, and thrilling listening-to over the radio.

It goes practically without saying that it also makes leading New Dealers violently hot under the collar. There, likewise, are Republicans who think it's overdone.

For instance, Senator Robert A. Taft, anti-New Dealerish as he is, doesn't employ such terms as "larceny." Senator Arthur Vandenberg prefers subtler expressions. Senator Styles Bridges is more diplomatic.

Representatives Hamilton Fish, a very liberal orthodox Republican, altogether objects to having his party advertised as reactionary. His thesis is that the G. O. P. is progressive, but sensibly so. The New Deal, he thinks, is totalitarian. That's the way he wants the contest to be waged—Republican liberalism versus a New Deal dictatorship.

Well, Tom Dewey's campaign is based on the issue of New Deal "larceny." There are Republicans, though, who agree with Dewey. "Call the New Deal the worst names we can think of," is their motto.

AN UGLY CAMPAIGN?

It'll be an ugly campaign if the G. O. P. nominates Dewey.

It doesn't so much matter whom the Democrats nominate, Dewey, if named by the G. O. P., can be expected to accuse his opposition of crimes just short of treason, murder and arson. Taft or Vandenberg would accuse it of nothing worse than mismanagement. I don't know about Bridges, but even he hasn't the violence of Dewey's representations.

A fight between, say, Senator Taft and Paul V. McNutt might reasonably be expected to be a "gentlemen's contest"—hitting in clinches barred, biting eschewed strictly.

But between Tom Dewey and any Democrat!

Why, "holts" wouldn't signify!—rules or anything! A free-for-all! Those would be the regulations.

It's interesting to watch the preliminaries. Tom Dewey is starting something awful. It terrifies even Republicans. Democratic politicians consider it foul tactics. Nevertheless, Tom Dewey is at it. The amount of hodes he may raise can only be guessed at.

DIET AND HEALTH

Cure of Diabetes Possible But Rare

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is diabetes ever cured?

Diabetes can be kept under control so that it gives practically no disagreeable symptoms, but cases of cure are rare. By cure I mean that the patient can eat whatever he likes with no insulin, and has no sugar in the urine.

A patient reported by Dr. Elliot Joslin developed diabetes at the age of two. At first she was a severe diabetic, requiring 30 to 40 units of insulin a day, as well as a carefully-regulated diet. She continued

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

this way until her first year in college. Then the insulin requirement dropped off; in her junior year she needed only five units, and in her senior year none at all. She is now 22 years old.

Another type is a man, 65 years old, who had diabetes for six years. He was a mild type and required only 15 units of insulin a day. Then he had a gall-bladder operation and the diabetes steadily improved. Now he eats what he likes, takes no insulin and shows no sign of diabetes.

The explanation is that the cause of diabetes is an atrophy of the secretory cells of the pancreas which manufacture insulin. But with this atrophy there goes a tendency for the cells to regenerate in the course of time and start functioning again. There is, therefore, no inherent reason why diabetes should not tend toward recovery, if the cells are rested by the artificial supply of insulin, and with improvement in treatment patients will live longer and cases of cure increase.

Modern Treatment of Epilepsy

What is the modern treatment of epilepsy?

Epilepsy is due to an irritation of the motor section of the brain. If this is caused by skull injury or irritation from a tumor, the irritation can be removed by surgical treatment. Scars and areas of pressure and adhesions can be improved in this way.

Most cases of epilepsy, however,

VITAMIN B SALAD

By Dr. Clendening

Vegetables used in a vitamin B salad are lettuce, peas and beans. Add slices of hard-boiled egg, a teaspoonful of almonds and walnuts; boiled dressing. Serve with two whole wheat crackers.

Recipe for boiled dressing—Three eggs, well-beaten; one-fourth cup of sugar, one level teaspoonful of dry mustard, salt, pepper, paprika, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of cornstarch dissolved in enough milk to make smooth—then add one-half cup of milk. Cook all these ingredients in a double boiler, beating in one-fourth cup of vinegar, drop by drop. When thickened, add one tablespoonful of butter; whip to a fluffy consistency. This makes one pint of dressing.

are not of this kind. The three methods of treatment of the functional form of epilepsy are depressant drugs, high fat (ketogenic) diet and fluid restriction. Adherence to diet and fluid restriction will control most cases.

The depressant medicines used include the bromides and barbiturates. They act by depressing the irritable motor cortex of the brain. Under the auspices of the Harvard Epilepsy Commission, cases treated with a new compound have been reported. It is not a sedative nor a soporific; hence the patient is much clearer and more alert mentally than when the barbiturates are used. It was carefully tested on laboratory animals before its use in human beings and its ability to stop convulsions was proved beforehand. In favorable cases it reduces the number of convulsions; in one case the patient going a year with only one attack.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

THE KILLER SPEAKS

RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

I CONTINUED to adjust my clothes hanging by the galley stove until I regained my composure. It would not do to let the crew know I recognized my kidnaper among them. They thought I couldn't identify him. They must continue to think so. That was why nothing had been done against me. It was considered perfectly safe to wait.

"We'll, let's get going," drawled Pete as he rose from the table. "Berger's wharf is just around the bend."

The men filed out the door and down the steps to the main deck of the barge. The big fellow walked stooped over, which I knew was assumed as a disguise.

"How long before we make this landing?" I asked the cook.

"About five minutes," I looked down the ladder after the men. In the swirling fog I could barely distinguish the crew as dark shapes moving among the potato sacks. Two of them paused to light cigars and I saw their faces. There was nothing sinister about them.

The cook certainly didn't look like a criminal type. I decided to take a chance on him. "I've got to get off at this landing," I told him. "Will anyone object?"

"We'll, I don't know. Mebbe it isn't safe. I don't know why, but somebody was trying to kill you a while ago. Mebbe you'd better not leave us."

"You think I'm safer on this boat than ashore alone?"

"How do you know you'd be alone?"

"I think I can take care of that, with your help. I've a feeling I'm not safe here."

"I sure ain't a murderer, if that's what you mean."

"I don't think you are," I reassured him. "I owe my life to the men on this barge, but at the same time I have a feeling that the man who wants to kill me is not a stranger. Am I right?"

The little man was flabbergasted by the question. He looked uneasily at the door. "No, that's a kinda strong thing to say. But I—I guess you're right. We gotta pretty good idea. We ain't going to let him get away with murder, though, not on this boat!"

"That's all I want to know. You'll be glad to have me off the boat?"

"Mebbe that sounds too unfriendly. We don't want no murder, that's all."

"Good. I've got to arrange to get away. I haven't got anything against Pete or you—or this boat. All I need is fifteen minutes ashore, to telephone friends to meet me at the next landing down the river."

"You're not going to call the police?"

"No. And all you need to do is to put out the light long enough for me to get down those stairs. I'll take my chances, and be back in fifteen minutes. Nobody will ever know you helped me."

"It's a go. You're in a tight spot. Mebbe that's the best way out—if you don't call the police."

"Come along with me, if you want."

He shook his head. "That would be worse, if anyone saw me. Get ready. Here's the landing!"

The propeller had been thrown in reverse, and now the chug of the motor died. We staggered as the barge bumped.

The cook blew out the galley lantern, as though the rough landing had effected it, and I ducked out the door and down the stairs. The lantern was quickly lighted again, but I was safe among the piles of sacks.

An electric light burned above the wharf, but its glow was dimmed by the fog. The crew threw out the gangplank and started trundling hand trucks ashore for the waiting pile of sacked potatoes. An idle hand truck stood near me. I grasped the handles and boldly joined the line, keeping my head down.

In the confusion I passed unnoticed. I pushed the truck into the shadows at the far side of the pile, found a hiding place for it and, crouching low, ducked around the corner of a shed. A moment later I was climbing the levee. The hand trucks were busily rumbling back and forth across the gangplank. My flight was not discovered.

A short distance beyond the top of the levee I saw the warm glow of windows in the fog. I found the path to the house and knocked on the door, which was opened immediately by an old man.

"I'll be right with you, cap'n," he said. "You'll find 300 sacks right enough this time." He reached behind him for a lighted lantern.

"I'm not the captain," I explained. "I want to telephone to friends to meet me at the next landing."

He blinked at me over his spectacles. "The road to Big Bend is pretty bad."

"They'll make it," I said. He led me to the telephone in his kitchen. It was one of the wall variety, with a crank to turn to get central. In fifteen seconds I had the office of The Morning Eagle on the wire and asked for Belzer.

I didn't know what the old man's connection might be with Pete and his crew, so I had to be vague in my conversation with the reporter. He seemed to understand.

"Okay, Butch," he said. "I think you picked a funny night to go joy riding down the river, but since it's you. . . . Where do I meet you—Big Bend?"

The old man told me how a car could get to Big Bend and I relayed the instructions to Belzer. I wanted to tell him to bring the police with him, but I remembered my promise to the little cook, and that I wouldn't be telephoning at all if it weren't for the cook.

"You might bring Harvey McGuire with you," I suggested.

I was thinking that I could entice William Calla ashore at Big Bend and the three of us could handle him.

"I'll do better than that," Belzer promised. "Harvey's car couldn't make it in time, but I know one that will."

"You'd better bring a revolver," I told him. "This delta country may not be safe at night."

As I hung up the receiver the old man snorted at my last suggestion. "Safe? Say, I've lived here nigh onto thirty years and—"

"Well, we city fellows are sometimes a little nervous," I told him. "Thanks for the phone."

"Just a minute and I'll walk down to the river with you."

"Sorry. I've got to run. Maybe I'll see you at the boat."

I had to get back on board without attracting attention—which the old man's presence certainly would have directed to me.

I was lucky. The pile of sacks on the wharf was only half gone. I grabbed my hand truck, loaded it in the shadows and rolled it aboard. My fifteen minutes wasn't quite up. I wondered if the cook would think to put out the galley light for me again. He didn't, but he had shielded it so that I climbed back up the stairs unnoticed.

The little man grinned, showing the gaps in his front teeth. "I knew you wouldn't run out on me," he said.

"I should have thought you'd been glad if I didn't come back."

"Not me. Mebbe you don't know it, but I'm supposed to be your jailer, Pete tells me."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Miss Dorothy Fohl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Fohl, North Pickaway Street, was chosen "May Queen" of Circleville High School and was to occupy the seat of honor in the May Day activities at the school Wednesday, May 1.

25 YEARS AGO

Charles H. May returned after a business trip to Muncie, Ind., accompanied by his daughters, Katherine and Elizabeth, who had been visiting with their grandmother, Mrs. William Bennett.

Miss Polly Briggs, student at Ohio University, Athens, arrived home, and, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Briggs, of North Court Street left for Cleveland where they spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Crites.

Track and field stars of five Pickaway County Schools, including Circleville, New Holland, Pickaway, Williamsport and Washington, were to gather on the high school field for a "quintuplet" meet, under the supervision of Coach Pete Herberholz.

10 YEARS AGO

E. W. Seeds, Ashville, was scheduled for a talk before the bankers of south-central Ohio at a meeting April 23 in Chillicothe. His subject was to be "Why are Financial Statements Required?"

Carlisle Moffitt of Columbus sang the bass solo in the sacred cantata at the Good Friday service of the Presbyterian Church.

TO HIGH SCHOOL BAND

YOUNGSTERS: Congratulations this week go to the Circleville High School band, to its director, Professor Charles Zaenglein, and to all who participated in the campaign that brought in plenty of money with which to equip the organization. The band won the hearts of all who saw the parade and heard the brief concert this week in the business district. The organization, dressed up as a Circleville band has never before been bedecked, played excellent music, and looked like the proverbial "million dollars". Although this has been written before, credit for the start of the campaign for funds with which to buy uniforms must go to the auxiliary of the American Legion post. This organization started a drive in its own organization and raised $100 with which to get the campaign under way. The task of this organization was not an easy one, because it received little support at first. But backing by the Chamber of Commerce and organization of a committee headed by Ray E. Rowland brought the long hoped-for results. Circleville can now be proud of its band, one that doesn't need to back down to any other similar organization in Ohio. I was surprised by the number of persons on hand to see the exhibition. Several hundred individuals were present to get their first view of the band in its new uniforms. I know that many persons will be on hand when the band appears at Lancaster in the second of the spring festivals next Friday.

TO MOTORISTS

DRIVERS: This is merely a warning all of you should heed: obey Circleville's traffic regulations. If you try to beat red traffic lights, and fail; if you try to slip through a stop sign, and are observed; if you travel too fast; if you park too long, and on the wrong side of the street, you are likely to take a little jaunt into Mayor W. B. Cady's court for reprimanding and fines, because city police have been told to clamp down. Why have laws if you don't enforce them? is the theme being carried out in the city's safety department. With much stress being placed on the uptown situation, including the parallel parking innovation, traffic officers of the city force have not been spending much of their time in the business district and have not been paying

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

AN ANTI-DEWEY newspaper specialist on New York politics drifted into Washington the other day and I met him at the National Press club. Naturally we discussed presidential possibilities. The things he had to say to Tom Dewey's disadvantage were aplenty.

"Well, anyway," I remarked, "he makes pretty lively speeches."

"He ought to," rejoined my vis-a-vis. "He has an extremely able staff writing them for him."

Not being a New Yorker myself, I don't know whether or not the Republican aspirant's talks are ghost-written. It's a fact, however, that they're making the administration's supporters tremendously sore.

Other G. O. P. spokesmen have charged that New Deal policies have been "mistaken" and "extremist." But in general they've agreed that they've been well meant—that many of them have been adopted in desirable directions—(if only the critics assert) they hadn't been bungled in execution.

Dewey's account, however, is that the record has been one of "unpunished crime—broken covenants, disloyalty to the constitution, abuse of power, intimidation, coercion, extortion and larceny."

It's been premeditated, too, according to Dewey.

He also has mentioned individuals—such as Harry Hopkins and Senator Alben Barkley.

IT'S "PEPPY" READING

This sort of stuff makes gingery reading in the newspapers, and thrilling listening to over the radio.

It goes practically without saying that it also makes leading New Dealers violently hot under the collar. There, likewise, are Republicans who think it's overdone.

For instance, Senator Robert A. Taft, anti-New Dealerish as he is, doesn't employ such terms as "larceny." Senator Arthur Vandenberg prefers subtler expressions. Senator Styles Bridges is more diplomatic.

Representatives Hamilton Fish, a very liberal orthodox Republican, altogether objects to having his party advertised as reactionary. His thesis is that the G.O.P. is progressive, but sensibly so. The New Deal, he thinks, is totalitarian. That's the way he wants the contest to be waged—Republican liberalism versus a New Deal dictatorship.

Well, Tom Dewey's campaign is based on the issue of New Deal "larceny."

There are Republicans, though,

much attention to the outer regions. However, all stop signs have been erected at the proper corners and motorists are expected to observe them. One of these days you'll pop around a corner ignoring a stop sign and find a nice policeman waiting for you. These laws are passed only for your protection and for the protection of your neighbors. You should cooperate in their enforcement. Chief McCrady came through with an announcement the other day that carries much importance. He said that persons who ignore traffic violation citations can expect to be hauled into the mayor's court by policemen who will be using warrants. It isn't nice to have a warrant served on you, so my suggestion would be to obey any summons issued by a policeman.

TO BUSINESSMEN

FRIENDS: Those of you who were not privileged last Monday evening to hear an address by Dr. H. H. Maynard of Ohio State University at the Kiwanis Club meeting missed a message that would have benefitted all of you. Dr. Maynard discussed numerous possibilities that face a city the size of Circleville in a business way. He told how a center located as ours could improve its business with a few simple efforts. He discussed the need for improved lighting inside and outside of the various stores as "the best salesman a store can employ." He urged store operators to develop their customers by becoming friendly with them, learning their names, the names of their children, because patrons like to be treated as friends and not as strangers. He urged, too, that a suitable parking location be provided so that buyers moving into the cities from rural areas need not hunt places in which to leave their cars. This statement came close to home because Circleville is still experimenting, trying to find a suitable solution for a parking situation that has become important. There are many who favor a continuation of the parallel system; others are opposed to it. The address proved to be one of the most outstanding offered at a Kiwanis Club meeting in recent months. Need for better light in the stores of the business district has been stressed time after time, and the need for boulevard lighting, too, has been cited, but very few definite steps have been taken. True, many stores have remodeled in recent years and others are expecting to do so. Aggressiveness, the kind that goes after business, is one of the vital factors on which business depends.

TO YOUTH HOSTEL GROUP

BACKERS: Circleville should have a unit in the National Youth Hostel program, one that will compare favorably with those in other cities. The Youth Hostel program has been developing steadily throughout the nation, and this city should be included in its growth. The idea is this: there are many youthful hiking and cycling clubs that travel to various parts of the state during week end and holiday periods. The Youth Hostel plan is to have a center in each key city where these youthful organizations may stay overnight, or rest during the day when on their trips. The Circleville committee which is headed by Turney Weldon has several locations in mind and is expected to complete arrangements for a Hostel within the next few days.

Cure of Diabetes Possible But Rare

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is diabetes ever cured?

Diabetes can be kept under control so that it gives practically no disagreeable symptoms, but cases of cure are rare. By cure I mean that the patient can eat whatever he likes with no insulin, and has no sugar in the urine.

A patient reported by Dr. Elliot Joslin developed diabetes at the age of two. At first she was a severe diabetic, requiring 30 to 40 units of insulin a day, as well as a carefully-regulated diet. She continued

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

this way until her first year in college. Then the insulin requirement dropped off; in her junior year she needed only five units, and in her senior year none at all. She is now 22 years old.

Another type is a man, 65 years old, who had diabetes for six years. He was a mild type and required only 15 units of insulin a day. Then he had a gall-bladder operation and the diabetes steadily improved. Now he eats what he likes, takes no insulin and shows no sign of diabetes.

The explanation is that the cause of diabetes is an atrophy of the secretory cells of the pancreas which manufacture insulin. But with this atrophy there goes a tendency for the cells to regenerate in the course of time and start functioning again. There is, therefore, no inherent reason why diabetes should not tend toward recovery, if the cells are rested by the artificial supply of insulin, and with improvement in treatment patients will live longer and cases of cure increase.

Modern Treatment of Epilepsy

What is the modern treatment of epilepsy?

Epilepsy is due to an irritation of the motor section of the brain. If this is caused by skull injury or irritation from a tumor, the irritation can be removed by surgical treatment. Scars and areas of pressure and adhesions can be improved in this way.

Most cases of epilepsy, however,

VITAMIN B SALAD

By Dr. Clendingen

Vegetables used in a vitamin B salad are lettuce, peas and beans. Add slices of hard-boiled egg, a teaspoonful of almonds and walnuts; boiled dressing. Serve with two whole wheat crackers.

Recipe for boiled dressing—Three eggs, well-beaten; one-fourth cup of sugar, one level teaspoonful of dry mustard, salt, pepper, paprika, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of cornstarch dissolved in enough milk to make smooth—then add one-half cup of milk. Cook all these ingredients in a double boiler, beating in one-fourth cup of vinegar, drop by drop. When thickened, add one tablespoonful of butter; whip to a fluffy consistency. This makes one pint of dressing.

are not of this kind. The three methods of treatment of the functional form of epilepsy are depressant drugs, high fat (ketogenic) diet and fluid restriction. Adherence to diet and fluid restriction will control most cases.

The depressant medicines used include the bromides and barbiturates. They act by depressing the irritable motor cortex of the brain. Under the auspices of the Harvard Epilepsy Commission, cases treated with a new compound have been reported. It is not a sedative nor a soporific; hence the patient is much clearer and more alert mentally than when the barbiturates are used. It was carefully tested on laboratory animals before its use in human beings was proved before hand. In favorable cases it reduces the number of convulsions; in one case the patient going a year with only one attack.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

I CONTINUED to adjust my clothes hanging by the galley stove until I regained my composure. It would not do to let the crew know I recognized my kidnaper among them. They thought I couldn't identify him. They must continue to think so. That was why nothing had been done against me. It was considered perfectly safe to wait.

"We'll, let's get going," drawled Pete as he rose from the table. "Berger's wharf is just around the bend."

The men filed out the door and down the steps to the main deck of the barge. The big fellow walked stooped over, which I knew was assumed as a disguise.

"How long before we make this landing?" I asked the cook.

"About five minutes," I looked down the ladder after the men. In the swirling fog I could barely distinguish the crew as dark shapes moving among the potato sacks. Two of them paused to light cigars and I saw their faces. There was nothing sinister about them.

The cook certainly didn't look like a criminal type. I decided to take a chance on him. "I've got to get off at this landing," I told him. "Will anyone object?"

"We'll, I don't know. Mebbe it isn't safe. I don't know why, but somebody was trying to kill you a while ago. Mebbe you'd better not leave us."

"You think I'm safer on this boat than ashore alone?"

"I think I can take care of that, with your help. I've a feeling I'm not safe here."

"I sure ain't a murderer, if that's what you mean."

"I don't think you are," I reassured him. "I owe my life to the men on this barge, but at the same time I have a feeling that the man who wants to kill me is not a stranger. Am I right?"

The little man was flabbergasted by the question. He looked uneasily at the door. "No-ow, that's a kinda strong thing to say. But I—guess you're right. We gotta pretty good idea. We ain't going to let him get away with murder, though, not on this boat!"

"That's all I want to know. You'll be glad to have me off the boat?"

"Mebbe that sounds too unfriendly. We don't want no murder, that's all."

"Good. I've got to arrange to get

away. I haven't got anything against Pete or you—or this boat. All I need is fifteen minutes ashore, to telephone friends to meet me at the next landing down the river."

"You're not going to call the police?"

"No. And all you need to do is to put out the light long enough for me to get down those stairs. I'll take my chances, and be back in fifteen minutes. Nobody will ever know you helped me."

"It's a go. You're in a tight spot. Mebbe that's the best way out—if you don't call the police."

"Come along with me, if you want."

He shook his head. "That would be worse, if anyone saw me. Get ready. Here's the landing!"

The propeller had been thrown in reverse, and now the chug of the motor died. We staggered as the barge bumped.

The cook blew out the galley lantern, as though the rough landing had effected it, and I ducked out the door and down the stairs. The lantern was quickly lighted again, but I was safe among the piles of sacks.

An electric light burned above the wharf, but its glow was dimmed by the fog. The crew threw out the gangplank and started trundling hand trucks ashore for the waiting pile of sacked potatoes. An idle hand truck stood near me. I grasped the handles and boldly joined the line, keeping my head down.

In the confusion I passed unnoticed. I pushed the truck into the shadows at the far side of the pile, found a hiding place for it and, crouching low, ducked around the corner of a shed. A moment later I was climbing the levee. The hand trucks were busily rumbling back and forth across the gangplank. My flight was not discovered.

A short distance beyond the top of the levee I saw the warm glow of windows in the fog. I found the path to the house and knocked on the door, which was opened immediately by an old man.

"I'll be right with you, cap'n," he said. "You'll find 300 sacks right enough this time." He reached behind him for a lighted lantern.

"I'm not the captain," I explained. "I want to telephone to friends to meet me at the next landing."

He blinked at me over his spectacles. "The road to Big Bend is pretty bad."

"They'll make it," I said.

He led me to the telephone in his kitchen. It was one of the wall variety, with a crank to turn to get central. In fifteen seconds I had the office of The Morning Eagle on the wire and asked for Belzer.

"I didn't know what the old man's connection might be with Pete and his crew, so I had to be vague in my conversation with the reporter. He seemed to understand."

"Okay, Butch," he said. "I think you picked a funny night to go joy riding down the river, but since it's your . . . Where do I meet you—Big Bend?"

The old man told me how a car could get to Big Bend and I relayed the instructions to Belzer. I wanted to tell him to bring the police with him, but I remembered my promise to the little cook, and that I wouldn't be telephoning at all if it weren't for the cook.

"You might bring Harvey McGuire with you," I suggested.

I was thinking that I could entice William Calla ashore at Big Bend and the three of us could handle him.

"I'll do better than that," Belzer promised. "Harvey's car couldn't make it in time, but I know one that will."

"You'd better bring a revolver," I told him. "This delta country may not be safe at night."

As I hung up the receiver the old man snorted at my last suggestion. "Safe? Say, I've lived here high onto thirty years and—"

"Well, we city fellows are sometimes a little nervous," I told him. "Thanks for the phone."

"Just a minute and I'll walk down to the river with you."

"Sorry. I've got to run. Maybe I'll see you at the boat."

I had to get back on board without attracting attention—which the old man's presence certainly would have directed to me.

I was lucky. The pile of sacks on the wharf was only half gone. I grabbed my hand truck, loaded it in the shadows and rolled it aboard. My fifteen minutes wasn't quite up. I wondered if the cook would think to put out the galley light for me again. He didn't, but he had shielded it so that I climbed back up the stairs unnoticed.

The little man grinned, showing the gaps in his front teeth. "I knew you wouldn't run out on me," he said.

"I should have thought you'd been glad if I didn't come back."

"Not me. Mebbe you don't know it, but I'm supposed to be your jaller. Pete tells me."

Frank Lynch Forced To Leave Post; Bartholomew In Charge; More Cash Needed To Purchase Property

Efforts to purchase land for a playground in the north end of the city were hastened Thursday when the Elks lodge committee that is seeking the necessary funds for the purchase met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 4 p. m.

Harry Bartholomew was elected chairman of the committee, replacing Frank A. Lynch, who has found it necessary to vacate the office because of ill health.

No action to buy the land, 13½ acres north of Hargus Creek between Court Street and the N & W railroad, has been made since last fall, at which time the committee decided to postpone action until spring.

"ABE LINCOLN IN ILLINOIS"

The addition of Fay Bainter and Otto Kruger to the cast, makes "Abe Lincoln in Illinois", to be presented Monday, loom up as one of the stellar attractions of the Radio Theatre this season. Raymond Massey will recreate the title-role in the Cecil B. DeMille production which will be heard over the Columbia network at 9 p. m.

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois" is based on Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize winning play. Raymond Massey and his company have just reached Los Angeles on their nationwide tour which makes his appearance in the Radio Theatre possible.

Fay Bainter will be cast in the important role of Mary Todd with Otto Kruger playing the part of Ninian Edwards, her brother-in-law. Ninian is the State Senator who interests himself in Lincoln's political career acting as a friend and counselor.

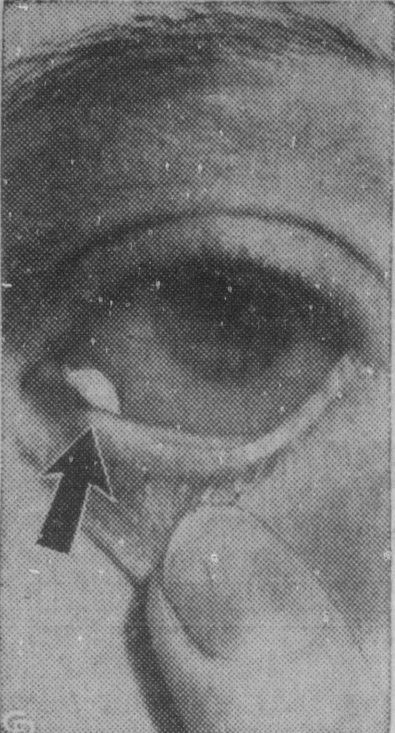

RADIO BRIEFS

The Music Mads of the Music Hall bought themselves a horse last week without taking into consideration the fact that all of them wanted to ride the horse at one time. Bing Crosby, overhearing an argument about who would ride the horse, when—stepped in and settled the dispute. Here's the settlement: the first girl who sings off key, misses a cue, or is late for rehearsal, can't ride the horse for a week.

Cecil B. DeMille set aside a "study room" in the Radio Theatre last week. The room, quietest in the building, was for Gloria Jean, co-starring in "The Under-pup." The 12-year-old Universal star is privately tutored. Her instructor told her that instruction would go on as usual that day.

Pathe News is trying an experiment which features Raymond Gram Swing, noted commentator heard over the Mutual network Monday and Friday at 10 p. m. They are simply running the image of Mr. Swing talking about the European situation just as if his broadcasts were being televised. The usual practice is to have the commentator merely be a voice

Stoutsville High School will present "Miss Cherryblossom," Musical Comedy in three acts by Dodge & Dodge, Friday, April 19.

"Miss Cherryblossom" promises to be the most entertaining and artistic performance of the school year. The members of the cast are busy rehearsing their dances, pantomimes and lines.

"Miss Cherryblossom" has its setting the Tea Garden of Kokemo, the proprietor of a Tea House in Tokyo, Japan.

The main incidents are centered around Miss Cherryblossom, alias Miss Evelyn Barnes, an American girl, born in Japan who was left in the care of old Kokemo.

Interesting and exciting situations arise when a number of "foreign devils" or Americans visit the Tea Garden and become close associates of the geisha girls and Kokemo.

One outstanding event which everyone is looking forward to is May Day. The May Queen is Marcella Hoffman who was chosen by popular vote. Each class held respective elections to elect two May Queen attendants from each class.

The following girls were chosen: Seniors, Ellen Fausnaugh, Lee Etta Rife, Juniors, Dale Thomas, Irene Seimer. Sophomores, Lila Aldenderfer, Annabelle Good.

Freshmen, Erma Fausnaugh, Phyllis Chambers.

According to tradition, the May Queen will be attired in a white gown and her attendants in pastel shades of formal frocks. Following the usual procedure, many intricate dances will be given by different student groups.

For our second annual May Day, let's try to make it the best that Stoutsville has ever witnessed and one that can be patterned after in years to come.

RADIO BRIEFS

The Music Mads of the Music Hall bought themselves a horse last week without taking into consideration the fact that all of them wanted to ride the horse at one time. Bing Crosby, overhearing an argument about who would ride the horse, when stepped in and settled the dispute. Here's the settlement: the first girl who sings off key, misses a cue, or is late for rehearsal, can't ride the horse for a week.

Cecil B. DeMille set aside a "study room" in the Radio Theatre last week. The room, quietest in the building, was for Gloria Jean, co-starring in "The Under-pup." The 12-year-old Universal star is privately tutored. Her instructor told her that instruction would go on as usual that day.
